

Having been informed that the gentlemen composing the United States Bank Committee, at present in this city, were invited by our enterprising fellow citizen, Doctor Dyott, to a view and inspection of his extensive Glass Factories, on Saturday last, I availed myself of my acquaintance with the latter gentleman, to be present on the occasion.

The members who attended were Judge Clayton, accompanied by his lady; Ex-President Adams, and Colonel Watmough, the others being prevented by prior engagements. They were conveyed to the establishment at an early hour, and were cordially welcomed by a number of citizens convened for the occasion. The works being in full operation, they were gratified with a sight of the different methods and processes of manufacturing, in all their various stages, which elicited their highest satisfaction.

After partaking of refreshments, provided by Mr. Michael Dyott, they proceeded to the Union Glass Company's factory, at the solicitation of Mr. Austin, the manager, and were entertained by an exhibition of all that is useful and curious in the art. After viewing the process of cutting and some very splendid specimens of workmanship, they returned to the city highly pleased with their excursion.

During their visit, every demonstration of respect was shown by the limited few who were made acquainted with the character of the visitors.
