

GEORGIA AND THE CHEROKEES.—We publish to day part of a Report of a joint Committee, in the Legislature of Georgia on the Cherokee lands. We think it proper that those of our readers in this Nation, who have not seen this extraordinary document, should be informed of the proceedings of some of those we are accustomed to call, elder brothers. This report is drest with very strong language, and had we never before realized a similar specimen of “moderation” from that quarter, we should consider ourselves in a serious dilemma.—The present would certainly be a troublesome time with us, if our welfare depended on the will of the committee; we do not say the people of Georgia, for we are unwilling to suppose, that the principles contained in the report can ever meet with the approbation of the people of a Christian state. We have had our trials and difficulties before, and perhaps it is the lot of Indians, never to find a resting place, never to enjoy a spot of ground which they can call their own, and which their white brethren will condescend to do them the kindness if not justice, to acknowledge as such. At such times as the present, we have been wont to look to the General Government for aid, and justice requires us to say, not in vain. We have full reason to believe that it will not now forsake us, and deliver us up to those who seek our hurt.—Cherokee Phoenix.
