

COMMUNICATED.

Mr. Shaw,—"I hope I don't intrude"—Just called to inquire what has become of the strictures on Judge Clayton's opinion, in his decision of the case of The State vs. John Saunders and other Indians, promised some two months ago by the editor of the Statesman & Patriot? Have the editor's ideas on the subject all evaporated? or has he come to the conclusion that it will be an unpopular subject, and that he had better withhold them? Perhaps he thinks the Judge may be too much for him, and does not like to "take the bull by the horns?" Merely ask for information.

PAUL PRY.