

MR CLAYTON. A letter from Washington, March 6, says—Mr Clayton, of Georgia, made to-day a speech, which to use his own elegant phraseology, was “all about” the Bank of the United States. According to him, the Bank is a sow, its branches the litter, or a sea serpent, or an eagle, or a mammoth, or a rat nibbling the public cheese, or a “feller” with a fine coat (not paid for,) buttoned up to conceal his want of vest and shirt! or, finally, like one of your Yankee tumblers with a bulged up bottom, which looks full when it hasn't half a reasonable dram in it.
